

Missouri Historical Society Looks to the Future with Electric Vehicle (EV) Charging

Case Study | Missouri History Museum

The Missouri Historical Society \(MHS\) has worked to ensure that its facilities, including the Missouri History Museum, Soldiers Memorial Military Museum and Library and Research Center are LEED® certified. MHS saw installing EV charging stations at their Missouri History Museum location as an extension of their commitment to sustainability.

About the Company

The MHS serves as the confluence of historical perspectives and contemporary issues to inspire and engage audiences in the St. Louis region and beyond. MHS has competed annually in the St. Louis Green Business Challenge, winning a number of awards and achievements since 2011. MHS is connected to the communities of the region in relevant and engaging ways. The stories MHS tells are inspired by its collections and the history of the St. Louis region. MHS facilitates discussions of social issues and topics that foster civic identity.

Charged Up About Commitments

- As a key community institution, MHS provides leadership and direction to others through its mission and values, which include fostering community engagement, leading education and exploration, striving for excellence and expertise, a commitment to stewardship and sustainability, and honoring inclusivity and collaboration.
- Ameren Missouri helped MHS keep true to those goals through the Charge Ahead incentive program, lowering the cost of installing four EV charging stations.

Charger Information: ChargePoint CT4021

Installer: Industrial Battery Products, Inc.

Charging Cost: $38,975

Charging Incentive: $19,487

Charging Ahead

- MHS received almost $20k in incentives through AMO's charging incentive program.
- In the near future, MHS plans to install EV charging stations at their Library and Research Center and will apply for more incentives with Ameren Missouri.

"Installing EV charging stations is part of our commitment to sustainability. The Missouri History Museum works to engage with our region's history so that we can better understand the present and work toward the future. We believe that committing to sustainable practices is part of our responsibility to our community."

– Karen Goering, Managing Director of Administration and Operations, Missouri Historical Society

Missouri History Museum Charger Address Location: Forest Park (Northside, West Wing Lot)
5700 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis, Missouri